

The New York State Interfaith Network for Immigration Reform

is sponsoring a bus to the

March for America

Change Takes Courage and Commitment

March 21, Washington, D.C. The National Mall

President Obama promised an immigration reform bill that provides a common-sense solution for our broken immigration system, one that provides a path to citizenship for the nation's undocumented and serves the national interest.

But it's getting late in the game, the administration has actually expanded the failed enforcement-only approach of the Bush administration, and the opportunity could well be lost to set things right if we don't act now.

Tens of thousands of people will gather from multiple sectors to send a powerful message to President Obama and to Congress: The time to fix our broken immigration system is now.

It's time for Immigration Reform.

No more raids.

No more fear.

No more broken families.

Schedule:

- 6 am Buses depart NYC at 6 am (location to be announced)
- 1pm Interfaith Service on the Mall
